

Congressmen Report On Horrors Observed In German Prison Camps

in any of these political prisoner camps," he said, "and there is no relationship whatever between a concentration camp for political prisoners and a camp for prisoners of war."

He said the committee based its conclusions upon three classes of evidence: personal inspection, testimony of eyewitnesses among the prisoners and "common knowledge of the camp"—things not actually seen by the prisoners but which they all knew to be true from circumstantial evidence.

He said rumor, hearsay and every other doubtful form of information or testimony had been carefully excluded.

"Those reading the report may be assured that everything herein described was either actually seen by us or reported to us by competent and reliable eyewitnesses or that it is based on circumstantial evidence which we have considered to be as trustworthy as direct evidence itself."

Tortures Not Described
Proceedings in the torture chambers seem always to have been done away with.

He said the committee saw with its own eyes:

1. "The barracks, the work places, the physical facilities for torture, degradation and execution."

2. "The victims both dead and alive," of the atrocities practiced at these camps."

3. "The progress of liquidation by starvation which was still going on."

4. We saw the indescribable filth and smelled the nauseating stench before it was cleaned up, and we saw a number of victims of this liquidation process actually die."

Barkley said that at Buchenwald, the first camp visited, the committee saw the "little camp," in which prisoners slept on triple-decked shelves. Each shelf was about 12 feet square with 16 prisoners to a shelf. The clearance height between the shelves was a little over two feet.

In the "little camp," he said, prisoners were given six weeks before being graduated to the "regular barracks."

During this time, he said, they were "expected" to lose about 40 per cent in weight. Rations were less than at the regular barracks and the death rate was very high, recently running about 50 per day.

The "regular barracks," he declared, had dormitory rooms approximately 42 by 23 feet and about 10 feet high in which, since the war, 250 persons were made to sleep with less than one blanket per person and no heat.

Hospital For Dead
The "hospital" at Buchenwald, Barkley said, was a place "where moribund (dying) persons were sent to die." No medicines were available, hence there was no treatment. Typhus and tuberculosis were rampant and death rates ran from 5 to 20 persons a day.

The "medical experiment building" at Buchenwald was used by scientists from Berlin who came down to inoculate "guinea pigs" with deadly diseases. Prisoners were induced to "volunteer" for this by being promised better living quarters and more food.

The crematory at Buchenwald, Barkley said, had a maximum capacity of about 400 bodies per 10-hour day. It was enclosed by a high board fence and manned by SS guards.

Roll call at Buchenwald was held every evening and a truck collected the bodies of all who had died during the day as well as live prisoners who were to be executed for political reasons.

The dead were taken directly to the crematorium. The living were forced down a 13-foot shaft, strangled and hung on hooks by SS men and then fed to the ovens.

There were two batteries of three brick ovens each. Total capacity was 15 bodies. It took 15 to 20 minutes to dispose of an ovenful.

Lack of fuel in March prior to the arrival of the Americans interrupted the cremations, Barkley said. He said the committee saw a truckload of 60 bodies, with about 25 additional bodies near it, standing near the crematorium.

Soup, Bread Served
Barkley said the committee was informed that rations at the camp were between 600 and 700 calories a day and consisted of very weak soup and a small piece of bread.

"Pictures and descriptions of the conditions at this camp cannot adequately portray what we saw there," Barkley told the senate.

"It is only when the stench of the camp is smelled that anyone can have complete appreciation of the depth of degradation to which the German Nazi government and those responsible for it and its agencies, organizations and practices had dropped in their treatment of those who have failed to embrace the doctrine of the 'master race.'"

The Nordhausen camp, Barkley said, was a combination factory and starvation-center. Slave laborers were systematically starved to death, meanwhile being forced to work long hours at an underground factory which produced V-1 and V-2 bombs, airplane engines and munitions.

At Dachau, Barkley said, the committee saw about 300 bodies of those who had died that morning. The Dachau gas chamber, he reported, could dispose of about 100 men at a time. Prisoners were also shot after being forced to kneel at the edge of open pits.

Extermination Planned
Barkley said the worst-treated prisoners were Jews, Russians and Poles. He said the committee was of the opinion that a colossal scheme of extermination was planned and put into effect against all those in occupied countries who refused to accept the principles of Nazism, or who opposed the saddling of the Nazi yoke on their countries.

The number of prisoners and slave-laborers, he said, is estimated to run between 12,000,000 and 20,000,000. Principle classes imprisoned and exterminated were "the intellectuals, college professors, army generals, business leaders, and professional men."

HATED QUISLING CLEANS TOILETS

he held sometime within the next two weeks, and later the high court will try Quisling formally as a traitor.

Underground sources told the United Press that Quisling had drugged himself into partial insanity because he feared for his life.

In his stone villa on Bydoy peninsula west of Oslo there was a huge wine cellar, and he used to sit drinking for hours in the five-story tower overlooking Oslo fjord.

His wife was found with 69,000 kroner in cash, a bankbook listing deposits totalling 69,000 kroner, 1,600 American dollars, and 550 British pounds besides bonds amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Three trunks containing 175,000 kroner worth of looted silver also were found in the Quisling mansion. Quisling's "Dillinger car," a gift from Hitler, will be kept in Oslo as a museum piece. It has bulletproof glass and slits for shooting in all directions.

NAZI TRIALS START
LONDON, May 15—The Luxembourg radio said the first trial of Danish Nazis, including Gunnar Larsen, former minister of agriculture, was beginning in Copenhagen today.

One lady recently stated that she used to throw her own dinner to the dog most of the time. It made her sick just to look at anything to eat. She was swollen with gas, full of blood, had headaches, felt worn out and was badly constipated. Finally she got ERB-HELP and says she now eats everything in sight and digests it perfectly. Bowels are regular and normal. She is enjoying life once more and feels like "some other woman" since taking this New Compound.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Sold by All Drug Stores here in Circleville.

HEAVY WINDS CAUSE LITTLE DAMAGE IN CITY

High winds which accompanied Monday evening showers blew down tree limbs in Circleville but no trees were reported as having been blown down in the city. A flag pole was blown over in front of the Veteran's of Foreign Wars Post on North Court street.

County Engineer Henry T. McCrady said that his office had but one report on a tree blowing down. The tree was a sycamore which blew over part of Route 56 in front of the Frank Bowling property, Route 2, Circleville.

The State Highway department removed the portion of the tree that was lying over the highway Monday night.

High temperature Monday matched the 1945 high of 85 degrees which was registered on the Circleville weather bureau thermometer March 25. The low temperature Tuesday was 58 degrees.

Temperatures are expected to remain the same Tuesday with showers late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

Mr. Southerland is survived by a sister Mrs. John Large, Chillicothe and three brothers Silas and Charles, Yellowbud and James in the Navy. Friends may call at the Whitel funeral home, Chillicothe. Burial will be made in Spring Bank cemetery.

ROAD CONTRACT AWARDED TO GEORGE W. VAN CAMP

Pickaway county commissioners have awarded the contract for improving about 52 miles of county roads to George W. Van Camp, Circleville contractor.

Van Camp submitted a bid of $55,258.57 for resurfacing the county highways. W. H. Ringwald and Sons, Chillicothe, had submitted a bid of $52,973.60.

The county commissioners returned the Ringwald company's check Tuesday. The check was submitted as bond with the company's bid on the project.

FATE OR STATUS OF ADM. DOENITZ STILL UNKNOWN

Himmler, No. 1 Nazi War Criminal, May Be Found With New Fuehrer

man Marshal Ernst Busch had been placed in command of German forces and civilians in north-west Germany last week with Allied sanction.

But he offered this as a "partial explanation":

"Something like 6,000,000 Germans are milling around and the best method of controlling them is to make use of existing authority until their future has been settled."

The final explanation, he said, would have to come from supreme headquarters.

The Allied war crimes commission, currently studying means of trying war criminals such as Himmler and Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, first received word of Kaltenbrunner's capture yesterday.

Although the majority of members of the crimes commission, were believed to be in favor of the American idea of a military tribunal, the Russian ideas on the subject still were obscure.

Presumably the trials would be delayed until all the Allies were agreed on the method to be used.

Kaltenbrunner, alleged chief of the gas program which said to have claimed at least 4,000,000 lives, was considered one of the top war criminals.

He was a shadowy figure, long known to the war crimes commission experts only as a "fat man with a singularly unpleasant face." He was under multiple indictment for mass murder.

Hitler, Heinrich Himmler, and Kaltenbrunner were said to have decided on gas as a cheap and effective method of mass execution in a three-man conference in Berlin in 1942.

At least two gas extermination camps were set up, one in Poland and the other in Germany. According to an eyewitness report in the hands of the commission, Jewish men, women, and children were killed in lots of 2,000 at a time in the Polish camp.

Jenda Weiss, Czech Jewish lad of 15, said in a sworn statement that guards "drove people into the gas chamber with sticks and when the place was full they threw children in through the windows."

Gas then was let into the chamber through three shafts. "The lungs gradually were destroyed and their shrieks could be heard for about three minutes," the boy's statement said. He also swore that those still alive after the chamber was opened were killed by other means and all the bodies were cremated.

The News-Chronicle dispatch said that Kaltenbrunner had tried to alter his looks by shaving his mustache but his thug's scarred face identified him.

Goering, it was believed here, would be held in the most strict military detention in the future as the result of the storm of public protest and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement following his early treatment.

At least four other Nazis of minister's rank now in Allied hands or available for arrest have been indicted and, presumably, held for trial. They were Count Lutz Schwerin von Krosigk, "foreign minister" of the Doenitz government, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hans Frank, and Karl Hermann Frank.

The latter three, respectively Nazi representatives in Holland, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, also were German ministers without portfolio.

Vidkin Quisling, Nazi overlord for Norway, may be the first prominent criminal to go on trial. He will be tried for treason by the Norwegian high court.

Pierre Laval also faces a treason trial upon his return to France when arrangements for returning him from Spain are completed. Laval will face a French court very shortly.

The No. 1 criminal on the list, Heinrich Himmler, still was the object of a wide manhunt today, centered in the Flensburg area where the regime of Admiral Karl Doenitz has been holding forth. The status of Doenitz himself still was under investigation by the war crimes commission.

Many other Nazi war criminals still were among the missing and their whereabouts a mystery. They included former foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, labor front leader Robert Ley, and Dr. Arthur Rosenberg, author of the infamous Nazi racial laws.

PACIFIC WAR VETERAN HELD ON THREE CHARGES

A Marine was in Circleville jail Tuesday on charges of stealing a taxicab, driving while intoxicated and resisting arrest. Harry W. James, the Marine, is at home, 138 East Mill street, on furlough after serving more than a year in the Pacific.

The cab was stolen sometime after midnight from in front of the taxicab office on South Court street. Marine James was arrested in the cab office after he returned the taxi about 2:45 a. m., taxicab company officials said.

LANCASTER MAN IS HELD FOLLOWING AUTO MISHAP

Henry McKinzie, 51, Lancaster, was being held on charges of driving while intoxicated Tuesday, police reported. He was placed under arrest after the automobile he was driving struck an automobile parked near the intersection of Pickaway and Franklin streets. It was parked there while the driver, Cecile E. Brown, Chillicothe, was shopping, policemen said.

Fenders on both cars were damaged.

HANNEGAN SAYS GOVERNMENT TO RELAX CONTROLS

WASHINGTON, May 15—National Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan told an audience of business men today that the postwar relationship of government to business would be keyed on co-operation instead of control.

"Once the threat of a war inflation is lifted, government controls will lift, too," he said, "and I hope that in those years, under President Truman, old uncertainties that plagued our nation's business and those who managed it will disappear."

Hannegan spoke to the Advertising club of Washington at a luncheon meeting.

He said he "hoped" that "A national economy free from depression will enable our government to draw a line limiting its own activities and say to business 'beyond this line we shall go not.' When wartime tax schedules can be revised to a peacetime basis, our government will offer the same kind of assurance in the matter of taxes."

Hannegan emphasized that he was speaking as Democratic chairman rather than as a cabinet member. He has been confirmed as postmaster general but has not yet been sworn in.

ALLIED SALUTING OF NAZIS TO BE PROBED

LONDON, May 15—The British war office said today it would investigate charges that Allied troops in one theatre have been ordered to salute German officers.

The charges were made by a British army sergeant in a letter to his representative in parliament protesting what he called a "foul insult to a victorious army."

The letter was revealed only a few hours after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower ordered drastic measures to prevent the coddling of captured Nazis or German officers.

Regional Security Fuss Biggest Issue At Stake At Peace Conference

three dangerous situations—any one of which could virtually wreck the new league before it begins to breathe. Those situations are:

1. Existence of regional organizations that would cut into the functioning of the world security council. If the inter-American system is given complete autonomy, it would open the way to a series of similar regional organizations which would, in effect, nullify the authority of the security council.

2. Any move that would make the Latin Americans feel that the United States, now moving in more powerful global circles, has had any change of heart about the hemisphere, or that would reflect in any way on the sincerity of U. S. action at the recent Mexico City conference.

3. Any step that would make the United States suspect of only playing lip service to the ideal of a world organization and preparing to retire to hemispheric isolationism. Such a feeling among the western European nations, it is felt, would lead to further regional pacts which in continental Europe would be dominated by the Soviet Union.

When this conference started, there was no suspicion that a crisis of such magnitude could arise over such a question. But the question really dates back to the Dumbarton Oaks conference, last Summer when the big four agreed that regional organizations could not take enforcement action in their spheres without approval of the world security council.

American officials admit now that action, taken literally, went too far. It doesn't take into consideration the inherent right of each nation to self defense and, in the case of regional arrangements like in this hemisphere, right of regional self defense.

SOCIAL SECURITY DISCUSSED AT KIWANIS CLUB

"How Business Men Look at Social Security" was the topic of Wayne W. Putnam, manager of the Columbus office of the Social Security board, speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday night in Hanley's restaurant.

Mr. Putnam said that few people know what the Social Security program is despite the fact that 80,000,000 workers are covered by the plan. He said that approximately 20,000,000 are not covered. They include persons in business for themselves, farmers and domestic workers. About 7,000,000 new cards are issued each year.

One of the biggest problems in connection with the work of the program is the issuing of new cards. Mr. Putnam said that during 1944 2,000,000 duplicate cards were lost. In Ohio from 1200 to 2,000 persons lose their social security cards each week.

The program is expected to net retired workers and other beneficiaries under the plan $2,000,000, 000 a year by 1960.

I AM AN AMERICAN

ONE of President Roosevelt's last acts was to designate May 20 as "I Am An American" Day. It will honor those who in the last year have become naturalized citizens.

In a larger sense it will commemorate all Americans of foreign origin, present and past; and that means all of us, for even the Indians are thought to have come from Asia.

There have always been useful citizens of foreign birth. In its early days the United States could not have done without its two greatest secretaries of the treasury, Alexander Hamilton and Albert Gallatin. Carl Schurz—general, senator, secretary of the interior and friend of good government regardless of party—was the most eminent of the German refugees who fled here in 1848 and have helped the country incalculably ever since. And American life would be poor indeed without the inventors, Nikola Tesla and Michael Pupin, Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, Lieut-Gen. William S. Knudsen, and Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra.

RETRIBUTION

MEMBERS of Congress at Washington have been applauding a demand for an immediate "drum-head court-martial" of Goering and other important Nazi leaders who still survive. Thus Representative Flood of Pennsylvania declares:

"I vehemently protest the treatment as a prisoner of war of this over-stuffed, obese member of the Unholy Three of Nazism. I demand that he be treated as a war criminal. I make the demand in the name of Europe's dead and starved by his hand, and in the name of the destroyed cities of Rotterdam and Warsaw."

Presumably these matters and others related to them will be handled adequately in due time, after all possible information has been extracted from the offenders. Getting the information is of prime importance now. After that, in Gilbert's mild phrase, they "might well be underground." Seldom have supposedly civilized men deserved more certain punishment from their country and the civilized world in general.

The Japs are beginning to wish they hadn't started anything.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Out and about the village at the usual hour, finding everyone glorying in the sunshine and warmer weather. Here and there a brave comment on Victory Gardens and many promises of great plantings now that "the weather has settled." I thought it had settled a month ago and am making no further predictions. Was in Marietta Sunday and saw gardens as they really should look at this time of year. Season far advanced beyond ours.

In the river town to participate in an open rifle shoot that drew marksmen from many states. Hoped to make at least a respectable showing, but developed into the biggest dub on the range. Not only could not hit anything, could not even come close. And that while Jim Stout, Jay Clark, Cecil Noecker, Bob Bower, Carl Kuhlwein all were making up high totals to the plaudits of Pop Betz. Many of the nation's outstanding marksmen there shooting in what I thought was the trickiest wind I ever had seen and which appeared to bother no one else. Oh well, one has to grow old sometime.

In the mail a truly fine letter from Frank Fischer expressing appreciation of the role played in the war effort by these prints. Truly a surprise, for newspapermen do not expect, and only once in several generations receive, praise for the time, effort and money devoted to public welfare. The public expects the newspaper to do gratis that for which any other promotional agency is paid, and what the public expects out of a newspaper it gets. For the newspaper is truly the public's property, owned lock, stock and barrel by the men and women who pay a pair of dimes a week for the delivery daily on their front porch of a complete publication of everything they care to know about. They determine policy all along the line. The stockholders are just men who spend half their time wondering when profits, if any, will return and why they ever made such an investment in the first place. But we get a bang out of it all. Maybe in the interest of public welfare it is well that we do. Thanks to Frank Fischer for his appreciation and kindness in expressing it.

In the afternoon met Bill Betz and from him borrowed a high speed rifle with the intent of training it on fox that moved into our neighborhood as soon as I published the fact that I intend to raise a few chickens against next winter's meat shortage. Chatted with Irv Patrick, the game protector, who is convinced that a coyote is roaming Saltcreek township. Many lambs killed there recently and Irv has identified tracks near the slaughter as those of a coyote. Irv probably will get him, for he knows coyotes and how to trap them, being one of the very few men in Ohio at least who could do so. Incidentally, did you know that coyotes when captured young and permitted to run loose, make fine pets and are perfectly safe? But they never get over killing chickens and sheep, will travel a score or more miles to do so. That is why we have wild coyotes in this part of the States. Picked up in the West for pets, reared until their crimes find them out and then the kind-hearted master rather than destroy them neglects them until they return to their wild state. I have seen many coyote pets and have seen children playing with them, but I never liked them and never permitted them to come close to me. They killed a big cat of mine years ago, the only cat that I ever liked. Since then I have had the pleasure of killing many a coyote. I have dug out their dens and dropped them on the flats and in the hills. Yes, I thought a lot of that cat.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 15—The way the tax trimming program was announced made it sound colossal, but it was far short of that.

When business corporations paid their excess profits taxes (running up to 90 per cent or more) in these war years, they did so under a provision of law which promised a 10 per cent refund within three to five years.

All this new program does is to say they may have their 10 per cent back now. No permanent loss to the treasury will result. Business will merely get its refund sooner.

The notion behind this major feature of the program is that business may use the money at once for reconversion. Some will need this help. Others have accumulated cash reserves (common corporate war practise.)

The other important change will be of considerable help to small business. The lift in exemptions on excess profits taxes (not normal rates which run above 40 per cent) from $10,000 to $25,000 will, in effect, absolve businesses earning less than $25,000 from the profit-confiscation tax rates of war.

But there is another provision of law which enabled corporations to deduct from certain normal rate payments certain allowances if they paid high excess profits rates.

Thus the announced relief will not be as great as the cited figures have indicated, with the normal tax hand the government will take back some of the balm it is offering with the excess profits hand.

This is about all there is in the "tax reduction."

Behind its announcement however the participants indulged themselves in a little light and fancy stabbing. Senate finance chairman George had announced two days earlier, he thought the government should promise a real reduction to begin next January 1, whether or not Japan was beaten. Next day from the treasury came an anonymous statement that George (whom some have mentioned as possible successor to Morgenthau) had reversed his position on this.

An official of the treasury department had given that information to news-men suggesting it be published without credit, as off-the-record inspiration. The news-men did not think George had changed his mind and the change was not printed, at least not generally.

This was not the only piquant savor of the deal. After George and House Ways and Means Chairman Doughton had been at the White House discussing taxes with President Truman, the newspapers were able to carry an authoritative statement that Mr. Truman had told congress to go ahead and handle taxes in its own way as he was too busy to bother.

This sounded very much like Mr. Morgenthau was not to have his usual annual soul stirring presentation of tax programs to congress (none of which have been adopted in late years.) It also somehow encouraged people to believe the reports that

A Nerve Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A PAINFUL condition of the face known as trigeminal neuralgia is one of those stubborn disorders which may require operation for relief.

Just what causes this disorder is not definitely known. It has been treated by injections of large amounts of vitamin B-complex, by cutting a part of the fifth nerve which supplies the face structures, and by injections of alcohol along the nerve.

Doctors Maynard Murray and Eileen O'Ferral of Cincinnati think that trigeminal neuralgia, or tic douloureux as it sometimes is called, may be due to irritation of the fifth nerve as a result of poisoning from infection of the teeth or the bones surrounding the teeth. This infection may come from decayed teeth or from the bone known as the alveolar bone which surrounds the teeth. The infection may extend into the jawbone itself in some instances. These physicians state that a careful examination of the mouth structures will help to tell just what treatment will be needed in these instances. When the gums are reddened and swollen, when there are areas of bone which are tender, or when patients complain of discomfort due to ill-fitting plates some type of surgical procedure may be necessary. None of these things occur when the bone structures are healthy and free from infection.

Twenty-five patients with tic douloureux who had been previously treated medically, surgically or by the dentist without obtaining permanent relief were studied. Following their treatment, which consisted of removal of the alveolar bone plus the extraction of decayed teeth when needed, all of the patients became free from symptoms for a period of four months to four years.

In trigeminal neuralgia there are attacks of pain in the face which may be so severe as to be disabling. The attacks come on at frequent intervals and in some cases strong drugs are needed to give even temporary relief.

Of those patients studied by Doctors Murray and O'Ferral many had taken large doses of salicylates and narcotics. Many had had teeth extracted without any relief of their symptoms. In the patients studied the right side of the face was affected more frequently than the left.

These doctors think that injections of alcohol along the nerve just give temporary relief from the acute pain and are not curative. On the other hand, the permanent relief which was obtained by surgical removal of the alveolar tissue and the pulling of decayed teeth seems to indicate to them that the cause of trigeminal neuralgia lies in poisoning of the nerve or direct infection of the nerve. Furthermore, the source of this infection is in the teeth or the infected bone of the alveolar structures around the teeth.

It would appear worthwhile for every person who has trigeminal neuralgia to have a careful study made of the mouth structures so that any abnormal conditions may be treated.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Gail's white coat was rumpled. She was hot and tired. Her office hours today had produced an unusual number of patients. Her practice was suddenly booming, but instead of being pleased, she felt uneasy, as if she were on parade.

People who'd never noticed her before, except to remark that a woman doctor was a freak, had suddenly become aware of her as news of the impending trial spread over Beauchamp.

Yes, that's the one, the woman doctor, she took care of Miss Reyna, that Howard Thayer's sister, and believe you me, she cured her. They called her Doctor McCormick, I suppose just to make sure everything was going okay, and would you believe it?—he didn't know what was wrong with her, and yet he's suing for a whopping big bill. . . .

Gail dismissed her last patients, a mother with a child who needed no medicine but plenty of discipline. Afterwards, she sat quietly at her desk, looking at the note Amos Niles had sent her by messenger. Apparently he'd been ashamed to face her. They didn't want her at tonight's dinner. And, she suspected, not solely because it was stag but because her presence might offend the great Dr. McCormick.

She answered the telephone at its first ring. Burke Gentry was calling. "Hi, sweetheart," he chortled. "What's new on the fighting front?"

"You'd know more about that than I would."

"I wish they'd kiss and make up," he said, with a trace of annoyance. "This trial's going to be a three-ring circus. Have you talked to Reyna again?"

"Look here, I talk to Reyna almost every day! But I can't do anything to stop her—I can't make her pay McCormick's bill." She was getting a little tired of the way everybody, including Burke, assumed she had any influence with Reyna. "I'm just an innocent bystander," she said crossly.

"But aren't you enjoying it?" he teased.

"On the contrary, you're the one who's having fun. I've no doubt you're even looking forward to cross-questioning me on the witness stand."

"You bet!" Burke answered with relish.

Burke, she thought, was full of contradictions. There was the athlete, the he-man; and the man who'd accept a job that might involve his fiancée, yet still be judicious and unprejudiced about it.

"How about a movie? How about going to one tonight?" he asked. "You'd better see the new Clark Gable picture. It'll be his last for a long while."

"All right. Why don't you come up about seven? I'll fix us some sandwiches and coffee. I haven't much appetite—and I hope you won't have either!"

"I lose it—when I think of Reyna Thayer. The old so-and-so—"

"Hush! She's due here any moment."

"Good Lord, is she sick again?"

"No. But she isn't too peppy. An illness like that drains one, you know."

It certainly had drained Reyna. She came into Gail's office wearing a brown wool redingote and, though it was late September, an atrocious brown straw hat. The color made her skin look grayer than ever.

"Old age is creeping up," she admitted cheerfully, as she took off her clothes and draped a white sheet around her.

As Gail took her blood pressure, Reyna chatted on. "I suppose you've heard that Lucienne is going to marry Doctor Kramer?"

"Why no! I suspected he was making a play for Lucienne."

"On the contrary," Reyna said, "Lucienne's made a play for him! That youngster knows what she wants out of life, and she takes it, as if it were a ripe apple on a convenient limb. All the boys she's been running around with are being drafted or enlisted—and Lucienne wants her future settled right now. So she decides on Doctor Kramer. He's up and coming, someday he'll have an important place in the hospital, and in the town."

"Oh, Reyna, it couldn't have been as deliberate as that! It isn't possible—she's too young, too romantic."

"Well, maybe she was really attracted to Kramer when she was ill. But afterwards, she's certainly put on a campaign to get him. The way she took that nurse's course—"

"The curious thing is that she has the makings of an excellent nurse."

"I agree with you. At heart, Lucienne's warm and maternal—no more like the average Beauchamp debutante than the man in the moon! Well she's got everything settled now. I wish I'd had her brains and foresight when I was a girl!"

Gail walked with her to the door. "Get plenty of rest, Reyna. A vacation would do good."

"I'm not going anywhere now," Reyna said stubbornly. "Not until I've had it out with Cassius."

Gail sighed. "Every time I think of that trial I have nightmares."

"Don't you worry about it, honey. Why don't you come back to the house with me for dinner?"

"I'd like to, but I'm expecting Burke Gentry."

Reyna's eyes snapped. "So it didn't do any good to introduce you to Steve McCormick. You really mean to marry Gentry?"

Gail's face was bland. "Don't you think I should?"

"Not unless you enjoy playing second fiddle to his ma," Reyna said tartly. "I have met the lady."

After Reyna had left, Gail tidied up her desk. Then she scrubbed and changed into a fresh blouse and a gray tweed suit. Burke should be here any moment.

Just a week ago, she and Burke, like Lucienne, had finally settled their futures. She'd met him at her office late one evening, after her duties were finished. He was finishing a brief, and she had sat down to wait for him. He looked up. "Getting bored, sweet?"

"No, not at all. . . . This is the first time I've ever been in your office, you know."

"Don't I know it—!" He put down his pen, came around the desk and sat down on the arm of her chair. He said suddenly, "Gail, let's get married!"

She stared at him. "Burke Gentry! After waiting all these years, is that a proposal?"

"It's the best you'll get, sister," he said lightly. "I'm a man of few words but many deeds," he added, and proceeded to prove it.

When she caught her breath, she thought: This is it, this is what I've wanted. . . . but the excitement's gone. Have we waited too long? (To be continued)

"The Authority on Authorities"

ZIG-ZAGGING A LUXURY

IT IS A LOT of fun, perhaps, to zig-zag from your own hand to dummy and back again, by means of ruffs, using only one trump at a time to take a trick. But that can be very expensive business, a luxury which often cannot be afforded. It may result in winding you up in a situation where an opponent can over-ruff you or in which you have to ruff so high to prevent an over-ruff that you build a defender's card into a trump trick. If you have the possible alternative of discarding losers instead of ruffing them, consider it carefully as possibly a better mode of procedure.

East 1♥ Pass
South 1♥ Pass
West 2♥ Pass
North 1♠ Pass

That 1-spade bid by North would have looked funny to lots of people, with the suit lacking a No Trump stopper, but it had its points. North did not feel strong enough to respond in the two range with his diamonds, and did not like 1-No Trump with his club singleton. Anyhow, the slide reached the right contract, which South should have made.

West ripped off two spade tricks, and led a third, which was ruffed by the heart 5. Followed then the club A and some more ruffing—the club 4 by the heart 4, the spade 8 by the heart 7, East tossing a diamond, and the club 6 by the heart 8. The diamond K was ducked by East, who used his A on the Q and fired back the club K, which was ruffed by the heart Q. The diamond J was ruffed by East's heart 10 and over-ruffed by the K. The heart A was scored, but now West's J took the 9 for the last trick, setting South.

After ruffing the third spade, South should have planned to use the dummy's diamonds for discards. The heart A and K should have been scored and then diamonds should have been led until East used his A. Any return could have been won, whereupon the heart Q would have been an entry to dummy to use the diamonds for three club discards to assure the contract if the probable trump division of 3 and 2 existed, as it did. Only an early club lead by the defense could have spoiled this plan, if the suit had been repeated later, forcing dummy to ruff.

Bloused Tailleur

Hat, neckerchief and handbag are made of gray and navy grosgrain ribbon sewed in "tripes."

BEAUTIFUL wool gabardine in a creamy, pale gray makes this two-piece outfit for sunny avenues. The top with its big self-buttons on the low waist-line is somewhat combat jacket, somewhat lumber jacket, but wholly feminine and chic in effect.

Note the wide shoulders and wide, fluid sleeves... the slight flare of the trig skirt.

DAHLIAS RUSH SEASON

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—Mrs. Mertle Evans thought she had her seasons straight, but early blooming dahlias got her mixed up. Last fall, she planted a dahlia bulb in a pot and placed it outside of her house. Before the winter had completely vanished, she noticed it pushing through the dirt. Just as spring rolled around, the plant burst into full bloom. And that wasn't supposed to happen until late summer or early fall.

The oldest city in Indiana is Vincennes, founded in 1732 by Francois Baptiste Bissot Vincennes on the site of the Piankashaw Miami Indian Village, Chipewoke. It also was the first capital of the Indiana Territory.

The famed 41st Division, one of the best known of all National Guard Divisions, started its fourth solid year of overseas combat in March, 1945. It is largely composed of men from Washington and Oregon.

Indiana sheep shearers clip about 400,000 sheep annually.

The University of Missouri now has 500,000 volumes in its library collection. The 500,000th book was an autographed copy of "The Iliad of Homer," as translated by William Benjamin Smith and Walter Miller.

Cabbage, which contains vitamins A and C, is the most popular vegetable, next to potatoes, in the United States, according to leading nutritionists. It packs a lot of food value in a small place.

Legal Notice

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT
No. 14768

Estate of Myron E. Van Riper, Deceased.
Notice is hereby given that Samuel E. Wilson of Circleville, Ohio has been duly appointed Administrator of the Estate of Myron E. Van Riper deceased, late of Pickaway County, Ohio.

Dated this 12th day of May, 1945.
STERLING M. LAMB
Probate Judge of said County.
May 15, 22, 29

LEGAL NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that the Churches of Christ in Christian Union has filed its petition in the Common Pleas Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, in cause No. 15223, praying for authority to mortgage its real estate in said county, located in Washington Township, and being known as the "Church Farm," which was purchased from the Huffer heirs, and is bounded and described as follows:

Situated in the County of Pickaway, Ohio, State of Ohio, and in the Township of Washington and described as follows:
First Tract: Beginning at a stone in the line between the 162 1/2 acre tract of Jacob Rutter of which this is a part and Edmon Rutter's 177 acre tract in the center of Section No. 16; thence with the half section line South 85 1/2 deg. East 83 poles and 18 links to a stone in said line; thence South 2 deg. West 164 poles to a stone in another one of the lines of said Half Section line; thence North 85 1/2 deg. W. 83 poles and 18 links to a stone; corner between said 162 1/2 acre tract and said 177 acre tract; thence North 13 deg. East 164 poles and 6 links to the place of beginning. Containing 85 acres and 4 poles of land more or less and being a part of Section No. 16 Township No. 11 and Range No. 21 W.

Second Tract: Also the east half of the southeast quarter of Section No. 16, Township No. 11, Range No. 21, Worthington's Survey, more particularly bound and described as follows:—Beginning at a stone South east Corner of said Section, thence North 87 deg. West 8 poles to a stone; thence North 3 deg. E. 163 poles and 4 links to a stone; thence S. 86 1/2 deg. E. 55-3/5 deg. poles to a stake in the County Road; thence S. 32 deg. West 162 poles and 3 links to the beginning. Containing 85 acres and 36 square rods of land more or less.

Excepting from the above described tracts of land 2401 acres of land occupied as an easement by the State Highway for road purposes and for further and more complete description see deed Record No. 111, page 246.

Such authority to mortgage said real estate is requested for the purpose of securing a loan of money to be borrowed to assist newly organized churches of Christ in Christian Union in purchasing suitable buildings for places of worship and to be applied on the newly purchased church building in Dayton, Ohio, which is to be in the sum of $6000.00. Said cause will be for hearing on or after the 20th day of June, 1945.

FOOD ADVISER DECORATED

CHICAGO—Harvey J. Owens, 62, who won honors in World War I for feeding horses, has achieved an honor in the present war for feeding men. Owens retired in 1938 as president of a bakery chain. Since Jan. 6, 1942, he has served as technical adviser and procurement specialist for the Chicago Quartermaster depot without pay. He was given a lapel button for his innovations in purchasing and packaging flour for the Army.

FREIGHT SERVICE 'WAY UP
CHICAGO—Freight Service increased 407,568,000 ton-miles between 1940 and 1943, according to a report in Railway Age. Service by railroads increased 358,497,000 ton-miles, and that by inland waterway, 24,356,000. The increase by highway was 201,000,000 ton-miles.

OTT IS HAPPY ABOUT CHANCES OF N. Y. GIANTS

Batting Power Keeps Team In Lead; Errors Help Reds Win At Philly

NEW YORK, May 15—The happiest man in town today was Mel Ott, the little guy who has hopes at last of rewarding his loyal New York Giant fans with a National League pennant.

His team, with 17 victories in 22 starts, is off to the best early lead since Cincinnati won the pennant in 1940 and there are no indications of a crackup.

There are plenty of factors to account for the upsurge but the biggest is the terrorizing display of home runs and extra base hits.

That was the case yesterday when the Giants scored their ninth win in the last 10 games, beating the highly-regarded Chicago Cubs 6-5 on two homers by Nap Reyes which brought in four runs. Phil Weintraub broke up the game when it went into extra innings with a single in the 10th which scored Roy Treadway.

The second place Dodgers kept winning, making it nine straight by beating the Pirates 4-1 as Leroy Pfund won his major league starting debut.

At Philadelphia the Cincinnati Reds cashed in on three errors to score four unearned runs in the fourth and won 5-4. Ex-Serviceman Al Bosser with relief help from Walter (Boom Boom) Beck, won his first big league victory.

All American league games were rained out. St. Louis at Boston game in the National was moved up to make a double bill Wednesday.

TOURNEY SLATE REVISED AGAIN; PERRY 10 WINS

More revisions in the county softball schedules were necessary Tuesday. Perry township won the first of Monday night's county softball games in the seventh inning by a score of 1 to 0 over Scioto township. The game was not completed before it was rained out but a sufficient number of innings had been played to award the game to Perry township.

The second game scheduled between Walnut and Jackson townships was not played because of the rain. Another date is selected by the tournament committee.

Weather permitting the semifinals will be played Wednesday evening. The finals must be played before Sunday. County School Superintendent George D. McDowell said Tuesday that it may be scheduled for some afternoon if there is no other date available.

LOUISVILLE MOVES INTO FIRST PLACE TIE IN AA

By United Press
Louisville moved into first place tie with Toledo in the American Association today by virtue of a 13-6 victory over Minneapolis in the only game played Monday.

While other teams were kept idle by uncooperative weather, Roy Patton held the Millers to nine hits to push his team into the No. 1 position.

Up to last June 30, the Coast Guard had issued 45,000 officers' licenses and more than 300,000 merchant seamen's documents to members of the Merchant Marine.

QUEEN AIDS "OAT BURNER"

A thoroughbred horse plays a star role in a murder mystery at a Mexican race track in Ellery Queen's "Adventure of the Dangerous Race," Wednesday. Orlo Robertson, general sports editor of the Associated Press and for years the wire service's horse racing authority, brings professional skill to the thriller as Queen's guest armchair detective.

the sound of artillery fire on the 5th Army front in Italy, T/S Harrison Swados, of Buffalo, N. Y., a Medical Corpsman, describes bringing back the wounded under sniper and machine gun fire. In a second interview, transcribed in Paris, Lieut. Kathryn Millane of Cromwell, Conn., a flight nurse, veteran of 60 missions and three transatlantic flights, describes how wounded are flown across the ocean to hospital in the United States. Jean Tighe, vocalist featured with Guy Lombardo's orchestra in his broadcast series, will be singing guest on this broadcast.

AID TO WOUNDED HAILED

How our Army Medical Corps gets wounded men off the battlefield, treats them in hospitals abroad, then rushes them back to the United States for recuperation, will be described in a pair of interviews, recorded at overseas battlefronts and broadcast on "Your Army Service Forces," Wednesday. RADIO NEWS NOTES

"We, the People," program of a nation at war, has its manpower problems, too. Two of their engineers—masters of the control room dials—have been drafted and the third has received an induction notice. Engineers for this radio show have to be extremely skilled, as they are dealing with persons who have never been on the air before, and also have to work with many out-of-town broadcast pickups. Know anyone for the job?

Cliff Goldsmith, author of "The Aldrich Family," laughingly admits that he gets many of his tricky plots from his wife. Says Cliff: "Understand, the little woman has never been given any credit for authorship, and never has she asked for a cut in my pay check. But I have noticed one thing. Our broadcasts take place on Friday nights. And in looking over the statements received from department stores during the past years, I find that most of her purchases are made on Saturday—at, I imagine, nine o'clock in the morning!"

County Wheat, Hay, Oats and Pea Crops Promise To Be Large

MARCH'S WARM WEATHER AIDS WINTER CROPS

Labor, Machinery Shortages Will Complicate Problems Of Harvesting Yield

Pickaway county's wheat crop is expected to be even better than the large 1944 yield, it was indicated today.

Hay will be normal, oats promise to be good and the pea crop is also expected to be good.

Weather, labor and machinery shortages have held up much farm work and may affect the harvest of the crops which now promise to be of the bumper variety.

Ohio's winter wheat crop will be about 54,552,000 bushels, an increase of 17 percent over the 1944 crop of 46,805,000 bushels, the Ohio Crop Reporting Service estimated today.

The service said the indicated yield per acre was about 24 bushels as compared with 23 bushels an acre in 1944 and the 10-year average of 20.2 bushels.

"The crop made abnormally rapid progress during March due to the unusually warm weather," the service said, "but during April the heavy frosts and excessive rainfall in many areas tended to retard its growth."

Rye production in Ohio for 1945 was estimated at 496,000 bushels as compared with the 1944 crop of 608,000 bushels because of a sharp reduction in acreage. The yield per acre was expected to be about the same as last year—16 bushels.

The tame hay crop as of May 1 averaged 91 percent of normal as compared with 88 percent on the comparable date of 1944. Pasture conditions also were favorable, averaging 92 percent of normal in contrast with 85 percent a year ago and a 10-year average of 75.

Maple syrup production this year totalled only 136,000 gallons, the smallest Ohio yield in years, because of labor shortages which resulted in a reduction in the number of trees tapped. Only 569,000 trees were tapped as compared with 747,000 in 1944.

The service said milk production per cow in Ohio on May 1 averaged 18.5 pounds as compared with 16.1 pounds on May 1, 1944, while Ohio hens laid 325,000,000 eggs during April as compared with 338,000,000 during April, 1944.

The drop in egg production was caused by a 10 percent drop in the number of hens on hand despite a seven percent increase in egg production per hen.

George might set the treasury secretaryship.

My own information is that nothing is likely to be done about a cabinet change in treasury until after the Bretton Woods agreements sink or swim congress.

Other than that it can be said Truman appreciates Morgenthau's good New York financial connections, but, on the other hand, George would take the job if offered.

Certain senators whom I greatly respect think Morgenthau will go in a few months and the job will be handed to Truman's Missouri banking friend, John Snyder.

From this series of inner events, it is plain the administration is not going into any real tax reduction for some time. It will not accept the George program promising action in 1946, and is content to rest with the faint trimmings presented last week.

CANNING ESSAY CONTEST WILL CLOSE SATURDAY

The Ohio essay contest on food packing will close at 5 p. m. Saturday. All high school contestants must have submitted their essays to the local U. S. Employment service office in the Pickaway county court house basement by that time.

The essay contest is sponsored jointly by the Ohio Canner's Association, State Department of Education and the War Manpower Commission of Ohio.

The contest is to encourage high school students to formulate ideas that might help to staff the vital needed canneries this season. It was also felt by the sponsors of the contest that many of the students themselves might help the manpower shortages in Ohio canneries during the months that school is not in session.

TODAY DEADLINE FOR FILING OF COAL BLANKS

Deadline for the filing of coal declarations with coal dealers is Tuesday night, the OPA reminded coal users.

Filing of the declarations will assure consumers of delivery of at least 30 per cent of their season's quota by September 30.

The forms, supplied by the Solid Fuels Administration for War in a program which limits consumers to 80 per cent of their normal requirements for a heating season, may be mailed at any time. But those sent to dealers after today do not obligate them regarding the time of delivery. The declarations are supplied by dealers.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN NINE MONROE SCHOOL SENIORS

Monroe township's 1945 graduating class of nine seniors were presented diplomas at the annual commencement exercises in the high school auditorium Monday evening.

Rev. S. N. Root, pastor of the Derby Methodist church, gave the invocation. Music for the graduation services was furnished by the school orchestra and the high school chorus. Mack Sauer, Hillsboro publisher, was the speaker of the evening. Mr. Sauer wove a pattern of humor and philosophy into his talk.

Ruby Cline, class president, made the salutatory address and Donna Speakman was the class valedictorian.

George D. McDowell, county school superintendent, presented the class diplomas to Ruby Cline, William Snyder, Betty Lou Jackson, Adrian Liston, Donna Bell Speakman, Paul Fels, Cora Lee Austin, Roger Allen and Alice Pullen.

MANAGES OFFICE

Garrett M. Cotter, district manager, is temporarily in charge of the State Automobile Mutual Insurance company office in the Lutz and Yates garage, East Franklin street. Mr. Cotter is in charge until a successor to the late George P. Bach, local representative of the company for 20 years, can be chosen.
